(Internship Project)

1.About the project the intern will be participating.

Shipping volume forecasting in distribution warehouses.

2.What will be the intern doing in this project.

Consider forecasting models for count time-series data (time-series data with non-negative integer observed values), as typified by the volume of shipments in a distribution warehouse.

In addition to feature engineering as a pre-processing of machine learning using exogenous variables such as past performance values and temperature, we will build forecasting models using various methods such as machine learning models (Random Forest, RNN, etc.) and statistical models (ARIMA, state space models), and compare and organize their characteristics such as accuracy and computation time. Comparison and organization.

3.What will be the deliverables after completing this internship.

- Python scripts that implement the forecasting models.

- Documentation of the features (advantages, disadvantages, etc.) of the forecasting models studied.
